Biography – Nahum Goldmann

Nahum Goldmann, President, ARRAY Development, is a leading expert and a renowned lecturer on building and securing ebanking and ecommerce, procurement, financial and governance solutions, as well as regulatory and government policy issues. He has extensive knowledge of ebanking and ecommerce environments and of government practices in the transactional delivery of financial and administrative services, as well as business transformation services and process reengineering of financial institutions and government organizations. Mr. Goldmann is considered to be a pioneer in the area of conceptualizing Extranet Business and Payment Communities and developing business vision, transactional costing, security environment and functional specifications for such communities.

Mr. Goldmann widely consulted corporations, financial institutions and public agencies on how to reposition the organization's service and knowledge delivery infrastructure, conduct corporate restructuring around the use of ebanking and ecommerce tools, and avoid frustrating and costly mistakes that are common in the fast-paced ebanking field.

Mr. Goldmann's methodologies on development of mission-critical ecommerce/ebanking processes are based on the numerous books and articles that he has published over the last 20 years, and on the original change management framework pioneered by ARRAY Development. Mr. Goldmann has presented his novel restructuring methodologies to government, financial and business professionals, scientists, and university students in courses, seminars, workshops and consultations conducted around the globe. He was an invited keynote speaker at a number of high profile ebanking and ecommerce conferences in North America and Europe. He was a consultant to IBM, the Bank of Canada, Canadian Department of Finance, the Government of the Netherlands, to numerous Canadian Government agencies, including TBS, PWGSC, IC, CIDA and IDRC, as well as to Elsevier Science Publishers BV, Bell Canada, Nortel and many other leading industrial companies, financial and government organizations.

Mr. Goldmann was a lecturer on Internet Marketing for graduate students at the School of Management at University of Ottawa, on Building Internet Commerce Ventures at the University of Toronto School of Management, Fellow of the Centre of Governance at the University of Ottawa, and a visiting lecturer at a number of leading universities and a keynote presenter at numerous Internet Commerce, Banking and Governance conferences in the US, UK, Canada, France and around the globe.
